

A pair of black over-ear headphones is positioned on a wooden desk. Below them is a black USB hub with three ports, one of which has a black cable plugged into it. The scene is lit with warm, natural light, creating soft shadows on the wood grain. The word "Nacre" is overlaid in a white serif font.

These days, it seems any surface can be a worksurface—but only when you want it to be. That's why Nacre keeps a low profile, but rises up when needed to reveal a dynamic range of power and data configurations. Including the new USB-C to charge phones, tablets and other devices. With a clean surface-mount design and a world of customizable lid options, Nacre is happy to keep things subtle. Or really make a statement. Whatever works for you.
